

Are you interested in Native American spirituality?
Have you ever experienced a gathering with a traditional Native speaker?
Would you like to hear about Native American issues past to present?

Please join us for potluck gathering to hear John Sanchez speak and to have a chance to eat together and socialize! John will also do a blessing for the start of the new beginning at Creative 360 supporting wellness and healing through the experience, expression and expansion of our creative selves.

John Sanchez is a Shoshone/Bannock Medicine Elder with a long tradition of helping native people whether through the American Indian Movement as a veteran/activist or with traditional medicine/healing. John is from the Northwest and is currently working in the Oregon prisons to bring traditional ceremonies/healings to native prisoners who have long been denied their own religion. John has been a member of AIM since 1973 standing up for and fighting for native cultural rights, religious rights, educational rights, and tribal rights. As a long-time Sundancer and Pipe Carrier, John is authorized to lead many ceremonies including inipi (sweat lodge) and yuipi (spiritual healing group ceremony).
